IV. Related Experience

1. Current Position - Dean of Graduate School, Professor of Psychology, Director of Research and Director, Human Factors Laboratory. Since July of 1974, I have been Dean of the Graduate School although I have still maintained an active teaching role in the Psychology Department, and have continued to direct the Human Factors Laboratory which is an applied psychology research unit. As Dean of the Graduate School at the University of South Dakota, I have been responsible for providing academic and administrative direction to a graduate school consisting of approximately 1,000 students involved in programs at both the Ph.D. and Masters level. As Dean, I have also been responsible for the development of several new graduate programs. My office is also responsible for administering the General Research Fund of the University.

Two years ago I obtained funds for and established an Office of Research within the Graduate Office. The
